Project Architect Joins Entech

Reading, PA - Entech Engineering, Inc. (Entech) is excited to announce the recent hiring of Matthew Clayton, AIA to our team as a Project Architect. Matt brings nearly 20 years of architectural design and project management to our facilities planning & design group.

Matt's previous experience has been heavily focused on research laboratories and office spaces for chemical and pharmaceutical companies.

Entech's Architectural Manager, Joshua Kiehl, AIA, said about Matt's addition:

"Matt's addition to our team continues to bolster our growing architectural capabilities in the educational, industrial and municipal markets in our region of work as well as increasing our capacity to support our engineering projects architecturally. I look forward to seeing what the future holds as we continue to help our clients make more informed decisions in managing their buildings and spaces."

About Matt:

Matt is a graduate of Temple University. He has been living in Morgantown, PA for the past 16 years with his wife and three daughters. When he is not at the office, you can find him either engrossed in family events or on the soccer pitch.
